

MY SVC AND ME OVERVIEW

The game allows the client to select from various child guides to take the client through the route ultimately leading them to the courtroom.

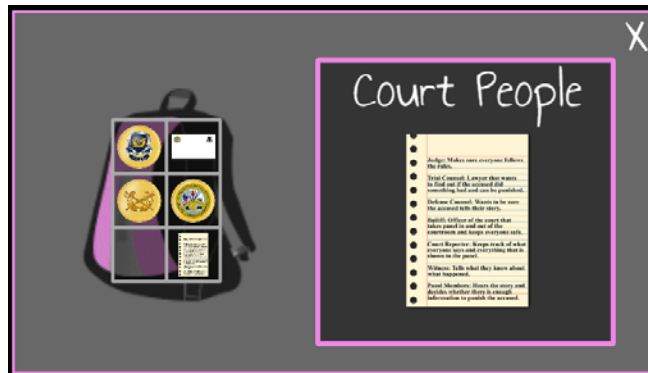

Very early on, the child is introduced to the Special Victim Counsel (SVC) who joins the child avatar in escorting the client through the process.

After explaining to the client the roles and responsibilities of the SVC, this newly-formed team is then prompted to move onto the court martial location. Once inside the courtroom, the SVC briefly explains the process and then each critical person within the MJ process introduces him or herself and defines, in simple terms their role in the proceedings.

At the very beginning of the game, the client is asked to select a backpack, personalize it with his or her name and then throughout the game is given opportunities to fill the bag with trinkets designed to help the client remember important matters concerning his or her upcoming court martial. These trinkets include the contact information of the SVC imprinted on a business card, a list of court martial personnel and other collectibles designed to reinforce concepts to the client.

“My SVC and Me” proceeds from scene to scene when the client colors in a particular screen shot by swiping across the screen thereby animating a particular scene and bringing the characters to life. This digital coloring media is supplemented with a traditional hard copy coloring book that once again augments the client’s learning key components within the courts martial process.
